

Destruction of rainforests

Amazon rainforest provides half of the world's production of oxygen, "lungs of the Earth"

Rainforests keep water

Rainforests are destructed by acid rains, air pollution and people (firewood, building, getting more agricultural ground)

Losing of rainforests means difficulties with breathing, rising of global temperature , melting of icecaps at the North and South Poles, rising of the sea level which can cause floods and disappearing of some isles